

Peace Corps Applicant Believes Realism is Vital for Program

By RADFORD CROUSE
(Mercury Staff Writer)

A Pottstown area man who is realistic about how to win friends abroad has applied for the Peace Corps.

Pierce H. Ripka, 33 year old manager of the Fellowship House farm, Faglesville, hopes to participate in the program for improving international relations on a person to person basis.

If he makes a superior American "ambassador of good will," it might be because he sees the need of making friends and winning respect of those in another land before attempting to change them.

The Peace Corps will work, Ripka said, "if we get a group of realistic people to go to countries. They must not have the idea of changing the world overnight but they have to be willing to work at it for years."

RIPKA LAST Summer led a group of 14 students from colleges in the United States to a Summer long work camp project in the less civilized sections of Nigeria. They joined with 12 Nigerian students and hundreds of townspeople in building a road through dense woods and in constructing a dam for a fishing village on the Niger Delta.

The work required the students to live in primitive conditions, to associate closely with the natives of Nigeria, and to constant danger of malaria, sickness, frequent heat exhaustion usually required for suchion and the demands of adjustment.

Through it all was aing to a climate that has an average of 180 inches of rainfall each year.

Drinking and bath water had to be boiled. "The water of the Niger river was something like that of the Mississippi, as Mark Twain saw it," Ripka smiled. "Too thick to drink and too thin to plow."

The need of the people for modern technique was great, he said. "They have no idea of sanitation as we know it. One could out of four lived to be 14 years old."

THE PEOPLE had nearly a 100 percent starch diet, he said. "They had oranges and grapefruit growing there, but they

AREA GRACED BY SPRING'S BALMIEST DAY

Temperatures Near 85 Are Forecast for Today

The sunniest day in a week and a half and one of the balmiest in the entire Spring passed Sunday and brought Pottstown area residents out in hot weather clothing.

If there were a few anxious glances toward the sky throughout the day they probably were prompted more by distrust of the weatherman than by any actual threat of rain.

The fact that rain has fallen on more than half of the days since the last full day of sunshine, May 5, made Sunday's pleasant demeanor hard to believe in the minds of many residents.

But it all turned out well as golden sunshine spilled over the ground nearly all day long.

The gloom and grayness of a serve the 2000 pupils from 50 alike seemed ready to follow the marching feet wherever they would lead.

THOSE WHO did observe the marchers, however, seemed to prove the adage: "Everybody loves a parade!" Young and old dispersed in a moment with the first rousing bars of a march as the AAA School Safety Patrol parade began.

Instead of playing a march, however, they might have played the moodier "Misty"—which would have suited the day perfectly. The parade began at the foot of nine . . . and so did the rain.

The parade started right on the button," said Nelson Gehman, director of the local Auto club. "But it only moved out one minute when the rain started. Fortunately, it only rained for five or ten minutes."

The colorful uniforms and banners, however, the gleaming instruments and cars, the stirring music and marching youthful feet almost made an observer think the sun was shining.

The weather also served to cut the expected attendance figure. Approximately 10,000 persons were expected to ob-

Hostile Frenchmen Fire Plastic Bombs

PARIS (AP) — France and the Evian, near the Swiss frontier, to Algerian rebel leadership pre-discuss means of letting Algeria's paraded Sunday for a long-delayed nine million Moslems and 1.2 million rendezvous around a peace table. Europeans decide on a future regime for the vast territory. A determined band of hostile Frenchmen connived to wreck the talks.

Operating boldly in broad daylight as well as the dark of night, right-wing extremists fired off thundering blasts of plastic in the Riviera city of Nice early Sunday and in Paris and Algiers Saturday. About 10 persons were hurt and property damage was heavy from the puttylike explosive.

U2 Pilot Denies Plans to Stay in Soviet Russia

POUND, Va. (AP) — American U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers has denied categorically reports that he plans to remain in the Soviet Union when he is released from a Soviet prison.

In themselves, the bomb gangs have until now presented no serious menace to the negotiations. But what concerns French authorities is an underground apparatus still powerful enough — despite strong police repression — to organize the attacks.

Tracts and other intelligence in the hands of authorities have given them pressing reason to believe that activist leaders are preparing another organized revolt of the kind which has shaken Algeria and France three times since the Algerian nationalists revolt began 6½ years ago.

A bristling alert was mounted in Algiers Friday after authorities said they were convinced a fourth "coup de force" was in the making. It did not materialize then, but a strong guard is still up.

French and Algerian delegations are scheduled to meet at

GOLDFINE FACES U.S. TAX TRIAL

$800,000 Evasion
Is Charged by Government

SECRETARY'S SENTENCE HINGES ON DECISION

BOSTON (AP) — Bernard Goldfine, 70, one-time collector of friends in high places — including the White House — is scheduled to go on trial in U.S. District Court Monday on charges of evading nearly $800,000 in personal and corporate income taxes.

Three days before Goldfine was to have gone on trial, March 20, his counsel won a postponement.

"I am a citizen of the United States and am proud to be one,"

Powers said in a letter to his parents here. "I might not like all the policies of the U.S. government, but I feel sure there are many millions of people in the United States who disagree with them also."

The U2 pilot was sentenced to 10 years in prison last August by a Soviet court.

The letter was in response to a newspaper clipping sent to the younger Powers by his father early last month, in which a London reporter was quoted as saying the U2 pilot would be released about May 1 and planned to stay in the Soviet Union.

"I cannot imagine where the correspondent, John Mossman (Moscow correspondent for the London Daily Mail) got his information unless he invented it himself. You may rest assured that I will return home, where I belong and want to be, as soon as I am released. Remaining here has never entered my mind," the flier wrote.

The flier said he had heard nothing about his wife, Barbara Powers, coming to the Soviet Union to live as Mossman had written.

Goldfine's codefendant on the latter charge, his blonde secretary, Miss Mildred Paperman, 42, has already pleaded guilty. Her sentence awaits disposition of the charge against Goldfine. But she already has been fined $12,500 for evading personal income taxes of her own — totaling $25,591 — and is on two years' probation — with a four-month suspended sentence.

Goldfine last year served 90 days and Miss Paperman 10 days in jail, for contempt of court in failing to turn over tax data to income tax investigators.

Released from jail in Danbury, Conn., last fall, Goldfine was found mentally and emotionally unfit to stand trial. After being in and out of mental institutions in Boston and Washington, D.C.,

Goldfine was found by U.S. Dist.

Judge George C. Sweeney to be mentally competent.

A once-poor immigrant boy, who early in life demonstrated a knack for trading in textiles and then branched into manufacturing and real estate, Goldfine long cultivated the friendship of influential men.

By 1958, when Goldfine found himself in difficulties with the Federal Trade Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission, his lavish gift-giving and hospitality drew the scrutiny of congressional investigators.

Kennedy-Khrushchev Parley is Considered

Initiative For Conference Said To Come From Moscow

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A agreement since he took office almost four months ago. State Department officials declined any comment on the report of a possible Kennedy-Khrushchev get-together, that being considered in the department as a matter for the White House.

Kennedy, here on a vacation, was of course, silent on the chances for the face-to-face meeting.

His press secretary, Pierre Salinger, said only that, "I don't know of any present plans for such a meeting." He refused to say whether any significance should be read into the words "at present."

Nevertheless, it was learned independently that discussions definitely are under way on the diplomatic level, at least, looking toward a distinct possibility that Kennedy and Khrushchev will get together.

The initiative for a conference was understood to have come from Moscow rather than Washington, primarily in suggestions from Khrushchev to U.S. Ambassador Lewellyn Thompson that Khrushchev would like to meet the new American chief executive.

Nothing has been settled at this point but a decision may be reached within a week.

And the chances are 60-40 favorable at the moment, in the American view, that a conference will be arranged.

The likelihood would be that Kennedy would go on to a meeting with the Soviet premier after conferring in Paris with President Charles de Gaulle of France.

Kennedy has three days of conferences set up with De Gaulle from May 31 to June 2.

Some neutral European city would be the likely meeting place for Kennedy and Khrushchev. At this stage, both Stockholm and Vienna are definite contenders.

Kennedy apparently is receptive to the idea that he and the Soviet premier get together shortly to try to form some basis for solving dangerous, urgent problems pressing down at various spots in the world.

The National Broadcasting Co., in a newscast from here, had said that the administration was trying to work out a private meeting between the President and Khrushchev and that U.S. allies had been approached on the idea.

There is some reason to believe Kennedy has already sent word to Khrushchev of his interest in arranging a face-to-face discussion of critical cold war issues but particularly the deadlocked negotiations for a treaty banning nuclear weapons tests.

The President is known to be deeply concerned about the failure of these negotiations to make any substantial progress toward age inside houses.

BETWEEN GENEVA SESSIONS—During the delay in the 14-nation efforts to straighten out the Laotian situation in Geneva, principals in the negotiations were getting ready for a showdown on seating Laos delegates. At top, Communist Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi leaves a conference with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. They got together on plans for the later meeting of Gromyko and Secretary of State Dean Rusk. The latter gave reporters the grim report: "No progress yet." At bottom, French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville (left) confers with British Foreign Secretary Lord Home. They said Western delegations were "not too far apart."

It is difficult to say what is impossible, for the dream of yesterday is the hope of today and the reality of tomorrow.—(Robert H. Goddard).

Grass Roots Education

WHAT has happened thus far during this session of Congress definitely indicates that there is a real chance of defeating—or modifying—or postponing action on—some of the more costly and more controversial proposals.

This can be accomplished, however, only if grass-roots sentiment against radical legislation is effectively presented to members of the Senate and House.

It must be recognized, in this connection, that the aggressive liberals—who, admittedly, are politically skillful—are seeking in every way possible to increase their strength in Congress and throughout the nation.

Organized labor is employing all of its vast resources in an attempt to drive President Kennedy even farther to the left and to encourage him to embrace more of labor's radical program.

In such a setting, a nation-wide educational program is imperative to convince the public that radical legislation is not in the best interests of the American people—and that the competitive enterprise system is the foundation of future national growth.

The fruits of such an educational campaign could include an increase in conservative strength in Congress resulting from the 1962 election, thereby making it easier to obtain desirable legislation and to stop undesirable measures.

So far as the remainder of the present session of Congress is concerned, there is some degree of encouragement in the fact that Mr. Kennedy has had to exert intense pressure—and to make some concession—in order to obtain approval—in modified form of some of his legislative recommendations.

These include measures to provide Federal subsidies for depressed areas and to increase the minimum wage and expand its coverage.

If Mr. Kennedy has had difficulty in obtaining congressional approval of these bills—which are among the less controversial parts of his program—he seems likely to have even greater difficulty with the more controversial parts of his program.

Highly controversial proposals awaiting action include Mr. Kennedy's tax program and medical care for the elderly under Social Security.

The Kennedy Administration's tax program admittedly is inadequate, even assuming that it will accomplish what its proponents claim.

Secretary of the Treasury Dillon, in presenting the Administration's case to the House Ways and Means committee, estimated that the $1,700,000,000 tax credit for new business investment might lead to the creation of 500,000 new jobs.

Yet secretary of Labor Goldberg has been proclaiming far and wide that the nation must create more than 7,000,000 new jobs.

Rep. Alger (R-Tex.), a sponsor of the Herlong-Baker tax rate reform bill, told Secretary Dillon that the latter's arguments for the investment credit "are the very reasons we ought to have an across-the-board tax cut."

Among other things, the Herlong-Baker measure would lower personal and corporation income tax rates to a maximum of 47 percent by a series of five annual reductions.

This would be expected to provide capital—and needed stimulus—for business expansion and modernization programs which in turn would result in more tax revenue than would be lost by the reduction.

Quite a Difference

THE difference between the Victorian girls and the ones of today is that in those times the girls blushed at a risque joke while today they memorize it.

PUNKIN CORNERS,

Editor, The Mercury,
Dear Sir 'n' Brother:

Wal, I see by the papers where Russia's astronaut, Maj. Yuri Gagarin, now says he'd like to take a trip up to Mars or, maybe even Venus. Nothing like a little space jaunt to give a fellow high ideas!

It's rained so much in this area that I had to equip my lawnmower with pontoons.

Princess Margaret's hubby, Antony Armstrong-Jones, has designed aviaries for two British zoos. Now, there's an occupation that's for the birds!

And say: It's a sad fact that those fancy batting averages which adorn the sport pages this early in the baseball season will prove to be just like the color pictures of vegetables in seed catalogs—top good to be true.

Hopin' you air the same,

Sweeper's Orders First, Dirt Last?

Same Old Rut?

To the Editor: Would it be possible for someone to tell me why that "important" street sweeper cannot see beyond his nose and clean a few streets without being told.

I saw the sweeper go down Grant street to the borough's garage where it is housed, and the driver completely ignored the street filled with paper and other debris.

I stopped and looked in amazement at the man sitting there with his nose turned up as though it might rain in it and said a prayer for the man because he has to have everything spelled out for him, before he can do it.

This is not the first time an incident of this nature happened.

This one happened during the Winter when the driver of a snowplow was asked to open a street, he replied, "My superior didn't tell me to open this street."

By the way, the street was closed with five feet of snow.

If the driver of these vehicles would be interested in the welfare of Pottstown, then he might be able to see beyond his nose.

Pottstown DISAPPOINTED IN HUMANITY

Thanks

To the Editor: The general public should be gratified for the leading role The Mercury took in promoting food handlers health examinations. It was a fine bit of public service. No one can tell how many lives it will save, or how much illness it will prevent, because, as in a safety campaign, no one can say how many lives are spared.

I also would like to say the response of the food handlers themselves was encouraging. They should be thanked for their interest in the public health.

It all goes to show we have a wonderful town.

Women's Hats Too Lofty

To the Editor: There ought to be a law controlling the new styles in women's hats.

For the store clerks and milliners, the business of high stepping coiffures is booming!

But what about the poor person who goes to a meeting, a theater or concert and can't possibly see the stage, program or speaker without staring into a mass of cluttered daisies atop some woman's head?

Today, the interested person has to be the first in church, and madly dash for the front pew to even catch a glimpse of the minister during the sermon.

A square foot of roses and petunias is fine on the street, but some ladies ought to use a little discretion when it comes to public places.

STOWE JUST WONDERING

Why Not Give Yourself?

To the Editor: It seems like every day some parent is complaining in town about nothing for his child or teenage son to do.

Facts are beginning to show it isn't the town's fault that recreational facilities such as dances and outside activities during the Summer are lacking.

Events for the teenage girl and boy of today need parental backing.

Why not get out and chaperone a dance and volunteer your car for a picnic or swimming party instead of just sitting back and griping that there isn't anything for my child to do?

With a little assistance from the so-called interested parent, I'm sure activities for the children would pick up a great deal.

Who's fault is it?

The Celebrities

KATHARINE HEPBURN journeyed to the airport to meet friend Spencer Tracy on his arrival in New York, but almost conked a cameraman when he focused his lens at the reunion. Both stars flatly refused to pose for photographers. Also at Idlewild giving the picture boys a hard time were Lauren Bacall and Jason Robards Jr., who didn't want to pose but were snapped anyway.

Dawn Addams now hopes to get custody of her child, since things have been "patched up" between her and her estranged husband, Prince Vittorio Massimo. He doesn't bother her any more, so she's called off the bloodhounds and bodyguards that used to protect her from him.

Buddy Bregman, who came close to marrying Anna Maria Alberghetti, is on the verge of the big announcement with Susan Lloyd.

Olivia de Havilland is burning the midnight oil in Paris pounding out the final chapters of "Parlez Vous," her reminiscences of life as an American wife in Paris.

JOE LOUIS will lead a troupe of performers on a June personal appearance junket to New Zealand. The former Brown Bomber will emcee song and dance acts.

Funny, Vivien Leigh is still listed as honorary president on the stationery of Laurence Olivier's fan club.

Gene Barry rejected a $1,000,000 deal to star in and own part of a TV series about a gambler living on the French Riviera. It would have meant his setting up a Swiss corporation and living in Europe for two years. Gene's reaction: "I wouldn't move out of the United States for two million dollars".

The gazettes have duly noted that Pamela Curran is getting an uncontested divorce from wealthy Bob Sweeney. The inside: the belle who made Pamela jealous enough to end the marriage is a Palm Beach beauty named Peggy.

MONTGOMERY CLIFT is interested in a deal that would have him directing and starring in a Broadway stage version of the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

MacKinlay Kantor is asking a whopping $750,000 for the movie rights to his just-completed novel, "Spirit Lake."

Harry Belafonte will spend the next two weeks in conference with President Kennedy's brother-in-law, S. Sargent Shriver, about a projected good will tour abroad for the New Frontier.

subterfuge, intended for gangsters, but is the basic protection of every citizen.

"It prevents a dictatorial government from making a person incriminate himself."

This fifth amendment was put in force in 1791, and the crucial words to which Luis Kutner refers are:

"No person . . . shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself . . ."

IN OUR legal system a person is supposed to be considered innocent till proved guilty.

And he is not to be persecuted and tortured or beguiled into being his own accuser.

That is the reason for this wonderful fifth amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Sometimes the government prosecutors will try to win the friendship of the accused victims and then blandly persuade them to sign a waiver of their constitutional rights.

Once that waiver is signed, the accused then cannot decline to answer personal queries that will be incriminating, unless he wishes to be subject to perjury.

STARR REPORT: The other night after hearing a panel of five experts hold an informal discussion about pay TV, I posed some questions and answers, put them down on paper and they came out like this:

Is pay TV coming? The answer, apparently, is yes. Its progress has been slow but steady during the past dozen years. With the exception of the networks and a few die-hards among the exhibitor groups, there seems to be almost unanimous belief within the entertainment industry that pay TV (PTV, let's call it), in one form or another, is inevitable.

What form will PTV take? In all probability, PTV will be largely a local enterprise. Some sort of network would only be necessary for on-the-spot pick-ups, mainly, sports events.

DISTRIBUTION WOULD be handled much as motion picture distribution is handled today, with the exhibitor merely moving his theater into the home. The many community antenna systems now in use seem to prove conclusively that homes can be wired, and over-the-wire telecasting is infinitely more advantageous to both PTV and the public than it is over-the-air, if only because it lifts TV out of the realm of government control and into the realms of free enterprise.

PTV will enable the viewer to influence programming as he has never been able to influence it via free TV (let's call it). The various rating systems are nebulous at best, but there is nothing nebulous about the hard and accurate counting of dollars and cents.

Will PTV be an improvement over FTV? In the main, yes. Talent is all but unanimous in agreeing that FTV has restricted the writer almost to the point of banality. Networks, agencies and sponsors, in their desire not to offend a single potential customer, have kept TV scripts well watered down. Such restrictions, presumably, will not exist in PTV, or certainly not to the extent they now exist in FTV.

Talent works where the money is and it seems apparent that talent will be able to earn more money in PTV. This would leave FTV saddled with third- and fourth-rate talent. Would sponsors be willing to pay $50,000 per half-hour episode, plus another $50,000 per half-hour of time—a minimum of $100,000 a week—for a series made up of third-rate talent?

Further, what audience would such a show reach? It could not be a buying audience, for the viewer who elects to watch a free third-rate show, rather than spend 50 cents or $1 for a first-rate motion picture would hardly be the kind to interest most advertisers.

These are just a few of the questions, and the answers have been thought out by people far more expert in the field than I. I'll take up more of them in a day or so.

Cancer Kills Courageous Actor

Dying Gary Cooper Consoles His Young Doctor

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When age in a man," Dr. Rex Kenna, Gary Cooper first heard that he was going to die of cancer, he took it silently and bravely and then consoled the young doctor who had to break the first such tragic disclosure of his own career.

"He didn't say anything when I told him. He never even flinched. I left and later got a phone call from him."

Patriarch Says He Has Sired 65 Children

NEW YORK (AP) — Old Abraham, looking about as ancient as the Biblical patriarch himself, came back Friday from a visit to Israel, the land of his birth, and offered a prescription for a long, healthy life.

"I live according to the laws of God and nature," said Joseph B. J. Abraham. He rattled the floor with his cane. "I do not drink or smoke."

The bearded, much-married centenarian, who says he is more than 102 years old, arrived on the American Export liner Atlantic, accompanied by his 12th wife, Sarah.

Like the Sarah who was wife to the Old Testament Abraham, she is considerably younger than her husband — 43.

But he could boast a progeny that far exceeded that of the long-childless Abraham of old. Sixty-five children, he said, are "claimed to me."

He said he was first married at 23, and his days have been fruitful with children ever since.

"I don't keep a list," he said. "My wife does. My oldest son is 79 years old."

And in keeping with the tradition of the house of Abraham, he said his brood has spread over the earth. His eldest son lives in Johannesburg, South Africa, and his youngest, Joseph, 16, near Baldwin in Lake County, Mich.

A 200-acre farm that Abraham owns near Baldwin serves as headquarters for a cult, known as the "Calling of the 12 Tribes," which he heads, the aged man said.

Declaring he seeks to bring some sense to the world, he added: "The planet earth is given to its sons and daughters to live in, and not to spill their brothers' blood."

Born in Jaffa, Palestine, in the 1850s, Abraham said he also has a home in Miami, Fla., and was married there last year to his present wife, the former Mary Jane Sarah White, Muskogee, Okla.

"It was love at first sight," said Mrs. Abraham, who was a widow at the time. "He's a very wonderful man."

Abraham had a 1952 Cadillac on board ship, which he had used touring Israel. He was traveling on a stateless passport.

He said he first came to this country about 55 years ago. He carried an international driver's license, entitling him to drive abroad, issued last Feb. 7 in Philadelphia by the American Automobile Association.

It listed his birth date as Sept. 27, 1858, and his home as Newark, N.J. He said he used to live there in 1959.

NO WIRES, NO CALLS — Joseph B. J. Abraham, who says he is 102, arrives in New York after a visit to his native Israel and tells newsmen that, in addition to fathering a family of 65, he has been active on a farm near Baldwin, Mich., and in a cult he calls "The Twelve Tribes." With him was his 12th wife who is 43. They met and were married in Miami, Fla.

A PITFALL OF THE BRIDE-TO-BE

A recent young bride has been kind enough to write in and ask me to pass on a warning to others who are in the midst of wedding plans. She hopes her suggestions will keep them from making the same mistakes she did.

Her subject has to do with keeping track of gifts as they arrive. No plan was made after the wedding invitations went in the mail. When the presents began to arrive a few days later, no one was assigned to open them, and make a definite note of who sent what, before they were placed on display. Result? Now she has many gifts, with not the slightest idea who sent some of them.

Naturally, she cannot write notes of appreciation to those who were kind enough to think of her. She realizes now that embarrassment is going to be her lot for some time to come. She will know that some of the people she meets probably sent her a gift, and haven't been thanked. She is afraid to offer thanks, and an explanation for fear they didn't send one!

To avoid such an unpleasant situation, I have often tried to impress the bride-to-be with the importance of appointing someone to handle all gifts. If this is not done, friends, relatives and the bride herself are apt to open the gifts as they arrive. In the rush, cards invariably get lost unless someone takes over with a firm hand and makes a rule that only she be permitted to open the gifts! Really, it's the only way to do it!

All stationers have a booklet containing ruled pages which are divided up into columns headed: Name of Sender, Address; description of gift and the store from which it came. Each line is numbered. To match these are small stickers,

State Senator Proposes Whipping for Crimes

DOVER, Del. (AP) — More than a year ago, an employee at a gasoline station owned by State Sen. Jesse F. Watson was beaten and robbed. As a result, the senator is trying to make whipping a mandatory punishment for armed robbery and rape.

"People don't usually do anything unless a personal interest or experience gets them started, and I'm no exception," the senator explained Sunday.

"Something has got to be done about the growing rate of violent crimes. They call whipping old-fashioned, but clothing designers have revived hats which were fashionable 30 years ago and they're sold. Maybe whipping will come back, too."

Watson, 34, who voted with the majority to abolish capital punishment in Delaware, has been the principal sponsor of two whipping bills. The first was passed by the Legislature last year, but was vetoed by Republican Gov. J. Caleb Boggs, now a U.S. senator. He called it barbaric.

The second has been reported out of Senate committee, and Watson says he'll bring it to the floor soon. But Gov. Elbert N. Carvel—a Democrat like Watson—already has indicated that he will veto the measure. He calls whipping uncivilized.

Delaware has been whipping criminals since colonial times, but the penalty has always been optional. It was commonly imposed through the 1930s, but no judge has exercised his option since 1952.

Now, Watson's bill would make whipping mandatory for men convicted of armed robbery and rape. A cat o' nine tails would be applied to the bare back while the prisoner was strapped to one of the whipping posts still standing at the three county correctional institutions.

A first offense would mean a minimum of 10 lashes, a maximum of 20. Two or more convictions would draw at least 20 lashes. Women, and children of "tender age," would continue to be excluded.

Watson, who lives in the small town of Townsend, says he's ready to consider a better deterrent for crime, but none has been suggested. He married a school teacher recently. She favors the bill.

Republican Fight Looms In Spring City Primary

Sparked by several contests in Spring City, voters will decide who shall be the Republican nominees for burgess, tax collector, council in the first ward and for ward constables tomorrow — primary election day.

The voting in Royersford seems to be a matter of routine, with no opposition facing the pre-announced slate. Royersford voters otherwise will be asked to register their choice in a special election for assemblyman at Harrisburg in the Third district.

Edwin G. Holl, GOP candidate, is running for the seat vacated by Floyd K. Brenninger, and is opposed by Charles Dasch, Pottstown, the Democratic candidate.

In Spring City the contest for burgess is between Raymond Ottinger, 413 Arch street, Spring City, and Richard R. Gorton, 219 Washington street, Spring City, publisher of the Inter-Borough Press. George F. H. Waiters, present burgess, is not running for re-election.

OF INTEREST too is the contest between Calvin M. Adams, incumbent tax collector, and Howard J. Barclay, Adams, Pikeland avenue and Wall street, was elected tax collector by the borough council two years ago to replace S. Norman Mowrey. Barclay, 14 North Main street, served to terms in the borough council several years ago. Frank Harple, 126 Hall street, is running for the Democratic nomination for tax collector.

Another contest is for borough council in the First ward, where Ronald E. Bradford is seeking the Republican nomination, and Raymond E. Umstead is running for both the Republican and Democratic nomination to replace John Scheffey.

For ward constable, there are three aspirants from the Third ward, comprising Joseph Ferrara, 73 North Church street; Franklin J. Reese, 231 Yost avenue, and Warren Snyder, 23 North Main street.

Clarence Hanebury is constable in the Third ward, but is not running for re-election. Running for re-election are John Hanebury Sr., First ward, and William Hanebury, Second ward.

JOHN HANEUBY Jr., present constable in the Fourth ward, is running for a seat on Spring City borough council to replace Gustave Frey.

Running for a member of Spring City school board to replace A. J. Balch is Charles D.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING

Two Surprise Parties Honor Couple Celebrating 50th Wedding Anniversary

By DOLLIE SMITH
(Mercury Staff Writer)

If the majority believed, like Mr. and Mrs. Westley Swinehart, that the best things in life are free, there would be few poor people on earth today.

The golden anniversary celebrants who don't claim wealth in the monetary sense of the word, have a far greater appreciation than most in the simple surroundings in which their lives are contained.

At their home on Fernbrook lane, Pottstown RD 2, they are exposed to a view done simply and elegantly by the most talented landscape artist — Mother Nature.

The house, purchased several years ago by Mrs. James I. Wendell and her late husband for the residence of their caretaker, is nestled among tall pine, maple and dogwood trees, healthy foliage, budding and blooming flowers and thick, freshly cut lawns.

From any side of the country home, located across the road from Mrs. Wendell's Applebrook farm, one can catch a glimpse of a variety of wild game. On the day of the interview, wild ducklings, only three days old, complacently followed the mother duck across the side yard.

Across the road, another duck was accompanied by a colorful drake on the banks of a quiet stream. A passerby with 20-20 vision and perhaps additional insight, could catch a glimpse of pheasant hens with mates or

Mrs. J. S. Kean Hosts Meeting Of Garden Club

A nature hike highlighted the monthly meeting of Chester county Garden club at the home of leader, Mrs. John S. Kean, Coventryville road, Pottstown RD 2.

Following the morning activity, the group roasted wiener and an outdoor lunch was served at the Kean home.

A trip to a Japanese Garden, near Allentown, is planned for June. In July the young gardeners will meet with the Pottstown Garden club, their sponsor.

Adults attending were Mrs. Kean, Mrs. William Schultz, assistant leader, and Mrs. Harold Diffenderfer.

Girls present were: Linda White, Donna Malenke, DeLeRee Dreger, Susan Dreger, Roseanne Fizz, Joanne Fizz, Jacqueline Fizz, Stephanie Sza-ka, Joanne Moyer and Diane Diffenderfer.

a groundhog in the adjoining wooded area.

Because of their love for animals especially dogs, the Swineharts became fox hunting enthusiasts. Hounds once followed only on horseback now also are followed by cars.

Mr. and Mrs. Swinehart still join the Bellwood and Pickering hunts in their car. "But not to shoot foxes," he quickly pointed out. "I follow the hunts just to hear the music of 80 dogs accompanied by a number of horses."

Music, too, is appreciated by the couple. "I've never learned to play any instruments, but we had pianos when the children were at home," Mrs. Swinehart said. "It was a wonderful way to keep the family home and together."

"Why, on some Sunday afternoons you might say we had retreats with the girls playing piano and the family and their friends joining in the singing."

The children who play the most important role in the couple's lives are Lois, wife of Frank Miller Sr., 300 Green street, Royersford; Galena, wife of Rupert Miller, Parker Ford; John Wayne, Emmaus, who was named for both grandfathers, and Jean, wife of James Daniels, Liverpool, N.Y.

The Swineharts also have eight grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

"Perhaps it's better not to mention great-grandchildren," Mr. Swinehart joked. "Some people might think we're old."

"That's not true," his wife retaliated, "that's what keeps us young. I'm sure I could still dance," she laughed.

On a more serious note Mrs. Swinehart added, "our children and all the grandchildren give us one lovely memory. But it's not an intangible memory, it's one we can see and enjoy."

"We've never been called grandmother or grandfather either. My husband and I have been Pop and Mom Swinehart to all of them."

Two surprise parties were given in honor of the couple. A dinner was held Saturday night at East Pikeland United Church of Christ for close members of the family.

An open house followed church on Sunday at the Swinehart home for friends and relatives.

Mother Enjoys Her Day

Day services. In addition to carnations worn to the church, many more were distributed at services. One of the churches—Zion's United Church of Christ—even gave a potted plant to each mom.

Carnations—the traditional Mother's day flower—were colored if the mother was living, white if she was dead.

Those who felt the joy of Mother's day as much as mothers were restaurant owners. Both local and area restaurants reported a record turnout for Mother's day. Most admitted the pleasant weather aided greatly in inducing families to dress up and take mom out.

"It was really hectic," said one waitress. "It was like five Sundays rolled into one!"

MANY RESTAURANT managers reported they were unable to handle the crowds. Some, for the first time in their history, were having to turn people away or make them wait at the door.

Record crowds of families were reported at Howard Johnson's, Lakeside Inn, Lake-Vue Inn and Dempsey's Diner.

"I would like to have a Mother's day once a month," said one restaurant manager. "But I don't think our waitresses could stand it."

HILL MASTER ELECTED TO BOARD POST

Named Vice President Of Admissions Test Group

James V. Moffatt, assistant headmaster of The Hill school, was appointed vice president of the Secondary School Admissions Test board at the annual meeting of the board.

Moffatt will succeed William C. Fowles, of the Hotchkiss school.

The four year old organization is international in scope, and assists private secondary schools in selecting qualified pupils by preparing a standard general academic test administered annually in more than 300 testing centers. In the past year, the test was administered to over 21,000 pupils in grades ranging from 6 through 11.

Moffatt said it was a great honor for him to be selected to the board. "I feel it's a great honor to have The Hill school represented on the board," he said.

Moffatt explained the function of the test board as equivalent to college entrance examinations, "but of course, on a lower level," he said.

The watering practice mostly involved milk being sent to plants in the New York City market, he added.

The department began taking legal action against the farmers involved as far back as last September, he reported.

Myers said the amount of watering varied and that the water was discovered by an instrument called a cryoscope, which gives a positive signal when water is added to milk.

In one instance, Myers said, there was a count of an additional 14 percent of water in several hundred gallons of raw milk.

YOUNGSTER INJURED

H. Robert Marquette, 11 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marquette Sr., was treated at Pottstown hospital Sunday for a cut on his right thumb. The boy received the injury while trying to open a bottle. The wound required three stitches, and he was released after treatment.

ate was negligible. As in most primitive societies the older people eat first. By the time didn't know the value of eating fruit or green food.

"The amount of meat they kids got a chance to take a meal from the pot, there wasn't any meat left.

"The people are intelligent. But they haven't correlated the fact that a child dies with the fact that he doesn't get proper nutrition."

The basic idea behind the "Operation Crossroad, Africa" program, as it is called, is similar to that of the Peace Corps, Ripka noted.

"I would hope to go to a country that is underdeveloped and work in a village, help build, teach a little sanitation, and help change the diet if it's deficient."

"But you can't tell people in a foreign land to do things. You have to make them respect you and earn their friendship, then suggest a different way of doing something. If someone will live with them and accept their way of life first and know their beliefs, then he can help them."

"The idealist will not last. The man who tries to go abroad and simply push his way on others will not succeed."

Ripka told of an experience that demonstrated his ideas.

A Nigerian saw the American and Nigerian students and villagers working together in the dense growth near a village.

He and his countrymen had known hundreds of years of rule by more advanced foreign countries.

The man watched a while and said, "The world certainly is working here with his hands."

He got a tool and joined the work crew.

first time in 12 years, and as a result, there will be four separate fights.

He called the borough's primary voting record "pretty sad—both Democratic and Republican," and pointed out that Pottstown would "probably have a county commissioner today" if Republicans had turned out in May, 1959 and supported Boden when the veteran politico was running for his party's nomination.

Boden's pre-election statements dwelt on the Holl-Dasch contest, since there are no local Republican fights: "Holl's vote will be enhanced by the numerous fights for local offices on the Republican slate throughout the county."

"Following past primaries, the Republicans will vote Republican, and there are just too many Republicans for Dasch to have a chance."

"Holl ought to have as good a margin over Dasch as the Republican candidates had in November's regular election."

DASCH, A LOCAL union leader and vice chairman of the area Democrat organization, lost in a four-candidate Republican sweep behind Richard Nixon. One of those who defeated him, Lansdale Burgess Floyd Brenner, quit the Legislature in a huff after a falling out with Republican leaders in Harrisburg. The special election tomorrow will fill his unexpired term of nearly two years.

Suchozza's statement, while reflecting his pessimism with the responsibility of local voters at primary time, called strongly for a bi-partisan effort to seat a Pottstown man:

"It's been the contention of both parties that this end of the county has been neglected too long. It has become a forgotten area, and Tuesday we'll have a chance to do something about it."

"Members of both parties can demonstrate a desire for representation by voting for Charley Dasch. He would be the hardest working man the county ever sent to the legislature. He is a servant of all the people, regardless of political affiliation."

Moffatt said it was a great honor for him to be selected to the board. "I feel it's a great honor to have The Hill school represented on the board," he said.

Moffatt explained the function of the test board as equivalent to college entrance examinations, "but of course, on a lower level," he said.

COATESVILLE WINS 4TH IN ROW, TABS 72

Foster, Carter, Glenn Get Firsts for Pottstown

By WARREN HOWARD
(Mercury Sports Writer)

WEST CHESTER — Heber T. Meyers has been proven a poor prognosticator for the second time in a month, but nobody could be happier about it.

And the Pottstown High track coach admits to predicting "25 points for us" in the Ches-Mont championship meet here Saturday, but "I didn't think it would be enough to take second place."

Coatesville won the meet with 72 points, for the fourth straight year, and the Trojans, with 27, were second, nosing out West Chester (24 1/4), and Conestoga (16).

Actually, the meet boiled down to a Coatesville "cake walk" to the title, with the Trojans leading the fight for the "leavings."

THE TROJANS grabbed off four first places, more than any other team in the meet, with the exception of the Red Raiders.

Bruce Carter—Pottstown High

Sophomore—won the 880-yard run in 2:02.6, the only break in the Raider first-place parade in the running events.

And this was where the first of Meyers' predictions went wrong. "I figured

Johnston (West Chester's

Jim) to take it," he said.

Actually, the race was so close that the two finished with identical clockings, but judges ruled that Johnston's last-second lunge failed to match the Trojan.

JOHNSTON HAD taken over the lead at the outset of the gun lap, with Carter moving up from fourth to "dog him" down the backstretch.

Carter made his bid for the lead entering the "far" turn, and so shocked Johnston by his bold move, that the Warrior star missed a step.

When this happened, Carter was able to get about a three-step lead, and the two battled down the stretch with Carter maintaining his slim advantage.

Johnston's last-second lunge

for the tape almost overhauled

Carter, but was barely short.

JIM FOSTER picked up two more firsts for the Trojans, matching Coatesville's Glandur Pitman as the only double winners.

Foster won the shot put and javelin throw, the former on a heave of 51 feet, 3 1/2 inches, successfully defending the title he won a year ago, and the second at 154-4.

Meyers chalked up Foster's victory in the javelin—

where he was hardly concurred a chance—to team-

Ken Quinter's split

finger and the all around slippery conditions.

"Foster doesn't use much run," said Meyers, "but he has a better arm, and while the rest of them were sliding around, he got his first throw out pretty good."

FOSTER'S WINNING shot put outdistanced both West Chester's John Hagee and Coatesville's Cliff Kennedy. Foster had lost to both in dual meets.

Bronk Glenn took the final

Trojan first in the broad jump, when the favored Jon Morse of West Chester failed to place.

Morse however, ignored the poor condition of the pole vault runway to set a new record of 12-6 1/2 in his specialty, erasing former Trojan Ron White's old mark of 11-10 3/4, set two years ago.

Coatesville's Tom Gomillion

set the only other record of the meet, stepping the 180-yard low hurdles in 19.8 seconds to erase the nine-year-old standard of 19.9 set by another Coatesville performer, Rod Perry.

The consensus however, was that the "heavy" condition of the track held down the record assault somewhat.

ELMIRA, N. Y., (AP)—An Extension Service notice, informing poultry farmers of a tour of other farms, was not intended to be a white-tie affair, but some people misinterpreted a note at the bottom. It said:

Officials said it was only a method of preventing poultry diseases from being spread.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love & Marriage

These Parents Are The "Poor Risk," Not You

Dear Beatrice Fairfax

Why should people think that off with me and I'm beside my father who was mean to his wife, he must have inherited this trait and can't be trusted to make a good husband?

My own mother died before I was old enough to really remember her long and my father remarried not too long afterward. Then, after a few years, he and this second wife were divorced.

After that, I was sent, when I was only eight to my grandmother's and she brought me up while my father went to live in another state.

Well, now I'm 26 years old and about six months ago I became engaged to a wonderful girl two years younger than I am. Her family were very inconsistent about knowing all my background for which, of course, you can't blame them, but when they found out how little I know about it myself, they really went to town and tracked down every possible means of finding out about my parents.

Eventually they found out from some relatives of mine something I never knew myself, which was that my father was really a heel and made both his wives miserably unhappy.

So now they are telling my girl that I'm a poor risk and they are advising her to break just because a fellow had a self because I'm afraid of losing her.

It isn't that she herself is afraid of me as a risk, but she doesn't want to antagonize her parents.

Of course your girl would be very unhappy to antagonize her parents. But if she loves you as a girl who has been planning marriage would be expected to love the man she has chosen as her husband-to-be, it seems to me she would take her stand firmly beside you and make it clear to her parents, in the best way she can, that she has confidence in you even if they don't. Frankly, I believe you're far more mature than anyone of these three people.

What I advise is that you suggest to your girl that until she makes up her mind what she wishes to do, you and she had better not see each other. You can say, if you like, that you'll hold yourself ready for her decision for a reasonable length of time and that she can get in touch with you when she is prepared to give it.

If her decision is to be loyal to you, make very sure that it is firm enough so that no opposition will be able to shake it. If it is that she believes she should defer to her parents and surely break up with you, then rest assured that, while you'll inevitably have a heartache for awhile, you'll definitely find a more worthwhile girl later on.

Having known you for the six months you've been engaged to their daughter, and no doubt for some time before that when you were courting her, surely break up with you, then rest assured that, while you'll inevitably have a heartache for awhile, you'll definitely find a more worthwhile girl later on.

Dear Bill:

What utter nonsense!

For anyone to assume that any given person must inevitably inherit the unfortunate characteristics of a parent is, of course, not only narrow-minded but woefully ignorant.

HILL SCHOOL ALUMNI ELECT OFFICERS

Attend Annual Festivities

Rodney D. Day, class of 1937 was elected president of The Hill School Alumni association Friday.

Along with Day, Alexander Harvey '2d, '41, was elected executive vice president, and Wilson P. Foss '33 was chosen vice president. The elections were conducted at a meeting of the association at the school, and were part of a full day's schedule marking annual alumni day. Day will succeed Richard K. LeBlond, '41, who was in charge of the meeting.

In other appointments Waldo C. Johnston, '33 and C. Porter Schutte, '31, received positions on the executive committee; and Milton S. Dillon Jr., '37 and Daniel D. Dickey '36 were appointed to the nominating committee. There were also two new trustees appointed as the result of alumni balloting. H. Barton Harvey Jr., '39, was appointed a 10 year trustee, and William E. Hutton '2d, '26 was made a five year regional trustee.

More than 200 members of nine classes attended Friday's festivities which began with registration at 11 a.m. At a luncheon preceding the meeting, 450 wives, guests, and alumni honored Parker F. Jackson, instructor of English and head civic responsibility, and pointed track coach at the school, and to the higher number of convicts George Whitley Jr., for completing 25 years service at the school.

In the afternoon guests attended a tea in the headmaster's garden. The alumni met for dinner at Brookside country club.

Spencer, introduced by toastmaster Harry Ginter, told the clubmen that his job could not be carried out without the cooperation of the average citizen.

He emphasized the need for more cooperation in galloping at full speed and jumping through fire. A dog performed the same feat.

"Have it next year?" Gehman asked on Sunday. "I should say so! It's going to be an annual affair from now on. Next year, as more schools and more people hear about it, we expect to have greater participation and more observers. This year we caught a lot of people unaware."

Although one horse balked and refused to perform any of his tricks, another was more cooperative in galloping at full speed and jumping through fire.

In the afternoon guests attended a tea in the headmaster's garden. The alumni met for dinner at Brookside country club.

Following Spencer's address Congressman Richard Schweiker delivered a short talk in which he deplored the need for this country to advertise its every move in the space fight.

Schweiker said he had it on good authority that the Russians made three attempts to get a man in space before they finally succeeded with Major Yuri Gagarin.

Wilfred DeLong presided at the banquet and Stephen Nadwodny was chairman of the banquet committee.

Today, too, will be fair, forecasters said, with the thermometer getting to a slightly uncomfortable 85 degrees.

Early morning fog, not as widespread as that Sunday morning, is expected. The skies will become partly clear this afternoon with the air still humid.

Tonight will be fair with a low near 60. Tomorrow will bring more sunshine in the morning but thundershows in the afternoon. A high of 85 also is forecast for tomorrow.

Master of ceremonies for this evening's rally will be Joseph A. Suchozza, Democratic party chairman in Pottstown. Pottstown Democratic candidates also will be at the rally, Suchozza said.

Refreshments will be served following the rally.

DA Spencer Tells Of Need for Citizens' Help
